

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for renaming a source for use with a processor, the method including providing an instruction, building instruction dependency information based on the instruction, caching the instruction based on the instruction dependency information to provide a cached instruction, renaming a register based on the cached instruction to provide a renamed register, and multiplexing the instruction dependency information and the renamed register to rename the source.

362810